Submission of Manuscripts
Cancer Epidemiology, Biomarkers & Prevention publishes original research on cancer causation and prevention in humans, linking three previously un-integrated disciplines: epidemiology, biomarkers, and prevention. Topics include descriptive, analytical, biochemical, and molecular epidemiology; the use of biomarkers to study the neoplastic and preneoplastic processes in humans; chemoprevention and other types of prevention trials; and the role of behavioral factors in cancer etiology and prevention. Manuscripts that address individual subjects in any of the three disciplines are welcome as well as manuscripts with an interdisciplinary approach. All submissions undergo peer review. Papers should be sent directly to Pelayo Correa, M. D., Editor-in-Chief, CEBP, Dept. of Pathology, Louisiana State University Medical Center, 1901 Perdido Street, New Orleans, LA 70112-1393. The glutathione S-transferases play a central role in neutralising carcinogens by coupling them to glutathione. The expression of the different classes is important in determining the relative risks of neoplasia.

Now the Biotrin range of antisera and GST EIAs offer convenient tools for investigating this important pathway.

THERE'S NOTHING MIGHTIER THAN THE SWORD.

MOLECULAR/GENETIC EPIDEMIOLOGIST

MAYO FOUNDATION

The Section of Clinical Epidemiology at Mayo Clinic, in collaboration with the Mayo Cancer Center, is seeking a molecular/genetic epidemiologist to fill a new position in our large and active group. This position presents an exciting opportunity for the successful candidate to conduct population-based molecular epidemiologic studies of the occurrence, etiology, and outcomes of cancers, as well as evaluations of the impact of diagnostic and therapeutic interventions in these conditions.

Applicants should have a strong methodologic training in epidemiology with evidence of research productivity in molecular epidemiology as reflected by peer-reviewed publications and a demonstrated ability to attract extramural research funding. This individual will be expected to develop an independent program of research in collaboration with clinical and laboratory investigators.

The Mayo Clinic, with a research budget in excess of $130 million per year, provides an outstanding environment for conducting molecular epidemiologic research. Resources include: The Rochester Epidemiology Project, with its linkage of medical records for residents of Olmsted County back to the early 1900s, a large referral practice as reflected by over 150,000 cases recorded in the Mayo Tumor Registry, tissue archives from the local and referral practice, and an exceptional collaborative atmosphere among clinicians, basic scientists, epidemiologists, and biostatisticians.

Academic rank for the successful applicant will depend on qualifications and experience. There are no clinical practice responsibilities associated with this position. Salary and benefits are most competitive.

Rochester, Minnesota provides a remarkable quality of life, as evidenced by its #1 (1993) and #2 (1994, 1995) ranking in Money Magazine.

Qualified applicants should submit a current curriculum vitae to:

Steven J. Jacobsen, M.D., Ph.D.
Head, Section of Clinical Epidemiology
Mayo Clinic, 200 First Street, SW
Rochester, MN 55905
(507)284-5544

Mayo Foundation is an affirmative action and equal opportunity educator and employer.
