HEALTH SERVICES RESEARCHER/HEALTH ECONOMIST

Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center (MSKCC) is recruiting a health services or health economist researcher. Primary responsibility is to develop an independent research program, complementary to the interests of colleagues in the Center, focussed on the cost effectiveness of cancer prevention, early detection and treatment interventions in different academic and community health care settings. This research would include: 1) determining economic and policy barriers to the transfer of cancer prevention, early detection, and treatment technologies from cancer centers to community health care settings, and 2) designing interventions that overcome or circumvent these barriers in order to reduce cancer risks and improve outcomes among high-risk and medically underserved populations, particularly in the greater NYC-metropolitan area.

Successful candidates must have a doctoral level degree in Health Economics, Health Services Research, or a related field, and post-doctoral, work-related experience. A record of peer-reviewed research and publication is desirable. Competitive salary and benefits package and support for relocation to the NYC metropolitan area available. Salary and appointment levels dependent on qualifications. MSKCC is an equal opportunity employer.

Submit curriculum vitae (including names, addresses and telephone numbers of three references), writing sample, and a letter outlining research interests and experience by May 28, 1993 to:

Dr. Jon Kerner
Director, Division of Cancer Control
Box 60, MSKCC
